THREE CHURCHES AID HEALTH OFFICER

First and Fair Street Reformed and Bethany Mission Give an Example of Practical Patriotism by Closing Sunday Schools.

Acting on the suggestion of the local health authorities it was decided this morning to omit the regular Sunday school exercises at the First Dutch Church and the Fair Street Church on Sunday and the Children's Day exercises to have been given that afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the First Dutch Church have been postponed until further notice. Five of the scarlet fever cases quarantined by Health Officer Stelle are scholars of the First Dutch Sunday school and in order to assist in preventing the spread of the fever and acting upon the solicitation of the parents of scholars of the school, Superintendent William S. Eltinge has decided to close the Sunday school until further notice. The Sunday school services at the Bethany Mission on Washington avenue will also be omitted and the Sunday school closed until further notice. The health officer has the scarlet fever situation well in hand at the present time and with the assistance of the residents of the city and with proper quarantine observance there is no danger of a scarlet fever epidemic spreading over Kingston.

AMENDMENTS BY JUDGE CLEARWATER

Of the over six hundred proposed amendments which have been introduced in the constitutional convention, it has been noted that few have been introduced by the delegates at large. Senator Root has presented none; Mr. Wickersham six; Mr. Stimson six; Ex-Mayor Low five; President Schurman of Cornell five; Judge Clearwater four. Judge Clearwater's amendments are:

1st. One approved by the court of appeals, authorizing that court in addition to the constitutional oath of office to be taken by applicants for admission to the bar, to include the oath prescribed by the canon of ethics of the American Bar Association.

2nd. One approved by the judges of the appellate division providing that the salary of judges assigned to sit in the appellate division shall be no greater than those of judges assigned to trial and special terms, and giving that court plenary power on reversal to render the judgment which should have been rendered upon the facts and upon the affirmance, to modify a judgment either in actions in equity or at common law, the object being to prevent a scramble for the appellate division, the judges sitting in which now receive $2,000 additional salary, and to avoid the delay involved in sending cases back for a new trial where the appellate division can render the judgment which the trial term should originally have granted.

3rd. One approved jointly by the state prison commission and the probation commission, creating a children's court and a domestic relations court which shall deal exclusively with cases affecting children and the abandonment of wives and children by persons whose legal duty it is to provide for their support.

4th. One approved by the state probation commission, making the members of the commission constitutional officers. The object of which is to prevent interference with the action of the commission by the legislature.

Spencers' Business School.

Walter Kuhlmann of the commercial department has accepted a position as bookkeeper with the Kuhlmann Brewing Company, Ellenville.

Ralph Myers, a graduate of the stenographic department, has secured an office position with the Ulster County Automobile Club.

Mrs. Mazie Martin, who is located with a large firm in Brooklyn, has been given a whole month's vacation on full pay and will spend the time in Colorado beginning June 15. Mrs. Martin has two nieces who will enter Spencer's in September.

President Kelly has been invited to attend the graduating exercises of New York University at which time degrees will be conferred upon Justin F. Carey, a former graduate of Spencer's. Mr. Carey's many friends in the city will be pleased to learn of his steady advancement.

Several new students have recently enrolled in the different departments of the school for summer courses. The summer school promise to be the largest in many years, as young people realize the great benefits derived from the thorough and comprehensive methods of training offered by Spencer's.

As to the Courthouse.

The courthouse was not instituted entirely as a means of providing punishment for evil doers; indeed, its chief business seems to be to house men who collect taxes and punish people who do not pay up promptly.—Ed. Howe.

KINGSTON'S WATER SUPPLY IS PURE

Report of Chief Engineer of State Health Department Commends New System of Filtration and Pronounces the Water Safe.

The following report of an examination of Kingston's water supply was made several weeks ago by Chief Engineer Horton, based on an examination by Dr. Berry:

March 15, 1915.

Hermann M. Biggs, M. D.,
Commissioner of Health,
Albany, N. Y.

Dear Sir:—

I beg to present the following report on the public water supply of the city of Kingston, Ulster county.

An earlier report of a full investigation of this water supply by the engineering division will be found on page 560 of the 31st annual report of this department. A reinspection of this supply was made on January 11, 18, 19 and 20, 1915, by Dr. C. W. Berry, sanitary supervisor of district N, and the following facts are based largely upon information furnished by him.

The water supply of this city is derived from the Sawkill creek rising in the Catskill Mountains several miles west of the city. This supply is supplemented in summer by water from the Mink Hollow creek which is diverted into one of the reservoirs. The water is collected in four impounding reservoirs, passed through mechanical pressure filters, using sulphate of alumina as a coagulant and the filtered water sterilized with hypochlorite of lime. The water works system remains practically the same as at the time of the earlier report. One of the impounding reservoirs, Cooper's Lake, has had its capacity increased by the construction of a higher dam, from 200,0000,000 gallons to 400,000,000 gallons, thus bringing the total storage capacity up to 567,000,000 gallons. An additional 20-inch pipe line is now under construction from the lower reservoir to the city. Four additional filters are to be added in the near future in order to care for the increasing amount of water consumption. The daily consumption at the time of the inspection was about 4,500,000 gallons. The higher consumption given in the previous report was based on Venturi meter records which were too high on account of an obstruction in the meter tube.

A full description of the filters, reservoir and pipe lines is given in the report of the previous investigation. Since the previous report the system of application of thecoagulant has been changed and the use of hypochlorite of lime begun. The apparatus for the application of the alum consists of four wooden tanks, 6 feet 6 inches in diameter and 6 feet deep, each containing a dissolving rack and spray pipe and agitators run by water motor. The hypochlorite of lime is mixed first as a paste in two cast iron mixing tanks, each containing a stirrer operated by a water motor, and then this paste is run into four concrete solution tanks each 3½ feet square in plan and 4 feet deep; also containing stirrers for thorough mixing. From the respective solution tanks both the alum and hypochlorite solutions are pumped into the water mains by hydraulic pumps. As there are two sets of filters, one set for the low service, the other set for the high service, the chemicals are added by two pumps. These pumps are provided with two cylinders, one for the alum solution and the other for the hypochlorite solution. These pumps have given some trouble and have been overhauled and put into adjustment recently. The alum is applied to the raw water before it enters the filters and the hypochlorite is applied to the filtered water. The hypochlorite solution can also be pumped into the raw water previous to filtering or in case the filters should be by-passed. The amount of alum used averages about 0.25 grain per gallon or 36 pounds per million gallons. During December, 1914, the bleach was added at an average rate of 6.5 pounds per million gallons or approximately 0.26 parts per million by weight of available chlorine.

The watershed from which the supply is obtained is about 33 square miles in area, comprising a portion of the southern slope of the Catskill Mountains. The northern portion of the watershed is steep and rocky and is for the most part covered with second growth timber, the southern portion is not so steep and is used largely for agricultural purposes. During the winter the supply obtained from Mink Hollow creek is not used.

The resident population on the watershed is about 1,000, practically all of which is located on the southern part with an average density of 26 per square mile. The region is largely used as a summer resort, and the population trebles in the warm months. The construction of the Ashokan reservoir of the New York city supply has necessitated the relocation of the Ulster & Delaware R. R. in such a way as to render the region of the Kingston watershed somewhat more accessible. In 1911 this department enacted revised rules and regulations for the sanitary protection of this watershed and during the summer months a man is kept constantly patrolling the region to enforce these rules. The Mink Hollow watershed has an area of about 8 square miles and a population of probably 80 or 100 per square mile.

At times trouble has been experienced with algae growths in the reservoir, especially in the spring and summer. Such trouble has been controlled by use of copper sulphate applied at the rate of 2½ to 3 pounds per million gallons.

The previous report on this water supply pointed out the danger of serious contamination of the water supply from human sources due to the comparatively large population upon the watershed. Furthermore at that time the filter plant was not operating efficiently and the method of applying the alum by means of the "shunt" system was unsatisfactory and incapable of accurate control.

It was therefore recommended:

Former Needs.

1.—A thorough inspection should be made of the entire watershed of Sawkill creek and also of Mink Hollow brook, provided it is intended to continue to use that stream as a source of supplementary supply, and steps taken to enforce the rules and regulations enacted by this department for the protection of their water supply to remove as far as possible all existing violations of these rules and sources of contamination of their supply and to guard their recurrence in the future.

2.—The watershed of Sawkill creek is becoming increasingly popular as a summer resort, and an increasingly serious element of danger lies in the pollution from the large number of tourists and summer boarders living in isolated houses and camps. The only effective protection of the water supply that can be secured against such pollution is the efficient filtration of the water before it supplies the city.

3.—Immediate steps should, therefore, be taken to increase the efficiency of the filter plant by scientifically applying the coagulant to the raw water and by placing the operation of the plant under the supervision of some sanitary expert.

Subsequent to this investigation Mr. Allen Hazen, consulting engineer, investigated and reported upon the water supply system. The report of Mr. Hazen confirmed the findings of this department and gave detailed advice relative to the improvements of the methods of operation and supervision of the filters.

Improvements Made.

According to the data furnished by Dr. Berry the following improvements have been made since the earlier report:

a.—The storage capacity of Cooper Lake has been doubled by the construction of a new dam.

b.—A new 20 inch main is under construction from the filter house to the ctiy.

c.—The regulations of this department for the sanitary protection of the water supply are more strictly enforced and a patrolman employed during the summer months.

d.—Sulphate of alumina is now used as a coagulant instead of crude alum and the method by which it is applied is much more accurate than formerly.

e.—The filtered water is also treated with hypochlorite of lime.

f.—Chemical and bacteriological examinations of the treated and raw water are made daily and regular records kept of the results. These results are used to adjust the treatment to the needs of the water.

At the time of his inspection Dr. Berry collected samples of filtered and unfiltered water for analysis and the results of these analyses, together with others made in the past by the Division of Laboratories and Research will be found in the appended table.

Water is Pure.

These analyses show that as a rule excellent bacteriological results have been obtained. The more recent analyses showing the of B. coli in samples as large as 30 c. c. and present in 1 c. c. only once in the past 3 years. The samples collected by Dr. Berry show a reduction of 99.3 per cent in total numbers of bacteria and the elimination of B. coli by the purification process.

In view of the above facts the following conclusions may be drawn:

Water is Safe.

I.—That the city authorities of Kingston have carried out the recommendations of this department.

II.—That under the present conditions upon the watershed and in view of the control of the possible contamination by the enforcement of the rules and regulations and the apparently careful and efficient operation of the purification plant, the water supply of the city should be of a safe and satisfactory sanitary quality.

It therefore seems evident that for the present no further recommendation need be made other than that the city authorities be urged to continue their careful supervision of their water supply.

Respectfully submitted,
THEODORE HORTON,
Chief Engineer.

KINGSTON'S BEAUTY ON HER TRAVELS

Friends of Miss Alice G. Matthews, of this city, one of the seven winners of the New York World-Universal Film Beauty Contest, have received communications from Miss Matthews in which she gives a slight account of her travels.

The "Beauty Party" started from the Hotel Manhattan, New York, chaperoned by Mrs. Champ Clark, wife of Speaker of the House, on June 4, and when last heard from they were just leaving Colorado Springs for Denver.

On the party's arrival at Chicago, a reception and dance was given at the Hotel Sherman and many of the prominent citizens of the city attended to bid the beauties welcome. The young ladies are being feted in every city at which they stop and are having a royal good time.

Early next week the party is due to arrive at Universal City, the city in California established and named by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, one of the largest moving picture concerns in the world. In Universal City the young women will take part in a serial picture, and the one displaying the most natural talent in that direction and the one best adapted for the work, will be presented with a silver loving cup and will be offered a position as a "movie star" with the Universal Company, after, of course, being developed and trained by the company's managers.

After visiting the Panama-Pacific Exposition and the San Diego Exposition, the party will leave for the east, and Miss Matthews expects to arrive in Kingston on or about June 25.

"STEW" PUTS 14 MEN IN JAIL

Unable to pay their fines of $25 each, fourteen Italian berry pickers from New York city were sentenced to twenty-five days each in the county jail on Friday afternoon by Justice Ball of Milton. The men had come up to Milton from New York but got there somewhat in advance of the berry season. That afternoon they decided to have a feast and securing a huge black iron pot they built a fire under it out in the field and then proceeded to skirmish for food while one of their number watched the boiling pot which had been filled with water. Soon the skirmishers returned from the front with a vast and miscellaneous assortment of the population of the field and the air which were dumped into the pot and preparations were made for a stew that would leave the far famed Irish stew far in the rear. Among those present, as they say in the society column, in the pot were robin eggs, hen's eggs, frogs, fish, not to forget spaghetti, a few chickens, robins, both young and old, a few other fowl of the air and beasts of the field, including turtles, and "others." Unfortunately, or fortunately before the berry pickers could sample the "stew" there descended in their midst Game Protector Charles E. Lee of Poughkeepsie and Edward Nolls of Milton, who placed the stew makers under arrest for violation of the conservation law and haled them before the bar of justice. The saddened fourteen were brought to 1818 Wall street that evening by Deputy Sheriff Hallock and instead of the "stew" they tickled their palates with the usual jail refreshments.

Mr. Gloom Reflects.

NO TOBACCO IN NEW HIGH SCHOOL

Firemen Prohibit its Use There During the Convention—Plans Completed for Big Event Next Week.

Although nothing but routine business was transacted by the local firemen's committee on Friday night at the central fire station, the keenest interest was displayed and final arrangements were practically completed for the big convention next week. Another meeting will be held on Monday evening to clean up a few loose ends and the convention will open on Tuesday and the three days' program is expected to go through without a hitch.

It was reported by the badge committee, through the chairman, Peter P. Zeeh, that the badges had been shipped and were expected to arrive here on Saturday.

The soliciting committees also reported that they had been active in their work during the past week. For the down town contingent it was reported that $1,000 had been collected. Seven hundred dollars was reported from other sources. The souvenir program is expected to net $800 at least, and perhaps more.

Chief of Police Wood reported that the detail of mounted water works police would be headed by Superintendent Shrady. There would be sixteen men, in addition to two color sergeants, a bugler and the superintendent. Deputy Chief Murphy was detailed to lead the parade in place of Chief Chipp, who is still confined to his home by illness.

A communication was received from Laflin hose company of Saugerties that it would take part in the parade on June 17.

It was decided to prohibit the use of tobacco in the high school building during the deliberations of the convention. The draft of a note to be addressed to the common council which meets on Monday night was also read. A vote of thanks was extended to those who had loaned their automobiles for the members of committees.

An adjournment was then taken until Monday evening.

MORE DELAY IN MEXICAN AFFAIRS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 12.—It was the belief in administration circles today that considerable time, possibly several weeks will pass before steps are taken to carry out the provisions of President Wilson's new policy in Mexico and bring the disorders there to an end.

Affairs will be permitted to remain about as they are, it is understood, pending the appointment of a permanent successor to William J. Bryan as secretary of state.

The relief work undertaken by the Red Cross meanwhile will not be halted. Food and other supplies will be sent forward at once and in as large quantities as can be obtained and handled.

The government at Washington still is waiting for replies from Villa and Carranza to President Wilson's warning to establish peace. Special care has been taken by agents of the U. S. to make certain the delivery to them of the president's statement.

Further evidence that the government is determined to relieve suffering in Mexico was given by its action in holding three regiments of troops at the border forts to prevent any interference by local Mexican authorities or others with the distribution of food by the Red Cross.

The regiments were to have gone to the Philippines.

Short Sight of the Snake.

Snakes are said to be so short-sighted that they are unable to see more than one-quarter of their own length.

ULSTER ACADEMY GRADUATING CLASS

The Ulster Academy graduating class has a remarkable scholarship record. Of the twenty-nine members, seventeen will be graduated with honor—that is with an average of more that 85 per cent. This speaks well for the last group of Seniors to leave Ulster's portals.

Too much honor cannot be given to Charles Sibley, a little fellow with the brains of a college professor. He graduates with highest honor, having attained the remarkable average of 95 per cent for four years' work. Sibley has not contented himself with getting only the 72 counts necessary for graduation for he will have 89 counts when the forthcoming examinations are finished.

Helen Connelly is but one point behind Sibley and Beulah Kittle has an average of 93 per cent.

The honor students and their averages are: Charles Sibley, 95 per cent; Helen Connelly, 94 per cent; Stanley Gregory, 94 per cent; Beulah Kittle, 93 per cent; Marion Dumond, 90 per cent; Harriet Church, 89 per cent; Laura Gildersleeve, 89 per cent; Edith Tongue, 89 per cent; Ethel Salzmann, 88 per cent; Edna Silverstein, 88 per cent; Antoinette Ketterer, 87 per cent; Katherine Barrett, 86 per cent; Helen Halloran, 86 per cent; Freda Krom, 86 per cent; Lena Merrihew, 86 per cent; Eleanor Cooper, 85 per cent; Fred Lockwood, 85 per cent.

Four will be graduated with honorable mention, having attained an average of 80 per cent or more. They are: Myrtle Barnes, Hazel Byers, Ross Osterhoudt, Katherine Smith.

The other graduates are: Bernard Culloton, Arthur Hallinan, Lauren Bell, Frank Boyle, Frank Dumond, Joe Murray, Donald Downer and Nicholas Stock.

Commencement Speakers.

An interesting commencment program may be anticipated because the speakers have selected attractive subjects and have all given good accounts of themselves as orators in shool programs. The speakers wil be Bernard Culloton, Charles Sibley, Ross Osterhout, Fred Lockwood, Edna Silverstein, Eleanor Cooper, Beulah Kittle, and Harriet Church.

The officers who have piloted the class through its voyage are: Bernard Culloton, president; Catherine Barrett, vice-president; Beulah Kittle, secretary; and Charles Sibley, treasurer.

WATER BOARD ELECTS OFFICERS

No Change Made in List of Salaried Employes or in Salaries—Water Supply Ample and of Best Quality.

John Hauck was elected president and Dr. George Chandler, secretary of the board of water commissioners at the annual meeting of the board held at the city hall on Friday afternoon. All of the paid officers and employes of the board were retained at the same salaries as last year with the exception of one of the inspectors, the board deciding to dispense with the services of one of the two inspectors employed last year.

The ones retained were: John H. Harrison, superintendent, salary $1,500 a year; foreman, Thomas Ward, salary $100 a month; cashier and assistant secretary, Abel B. Abernethy, salary $1,300 a year; bookkeeper, Leroy Cashin, salary $900 a year; inspector, William J. O'Neil, salary $75 a month.

James M. Caird was also again engaged this year as bacteriologist at the same salary as last year, $100 a month.

The fact that Kingston's water supply is pure and safe despite the false impression created by an article in an Albany newspaper and taken from a report submitted to the state board of health by a one Dr. C. W. Berry, was brought to the attention of the board by Mr. Caird, who was present at the meeting and assured the members that Kingston's drinking water is absolutely safe. Mr. Caird's assurance was borne out by the report of Theodore Horton, the chief engineer of the state health department, a copy of which had been sent the members of the local board. Mr. Horton's conclusions were drawn from information furnished by the same Dr. Berry from whose report the article in the Albany newspaper was written. Mr. Horton states that the Kingston authorities have carried out the recommendations of the state department and that the water supply of Kingston is of a safe and satisfactory sanitary quality.

The impression created that the typhoid fever epidemic at the Industrial Home was caused by the water is absolutely without foundation and in fact, as Mr. Caird pointed out, Kingston's death rate from typhoid fever was the lowest in the entire state.

A resolution passed by the common council urging the water board to lay pipe through East Chester street, from Lincoln street to Tammany street, as the street had been placed at grade, was referred to Superintendent Harrison with instructions to ascertain how many on the street would take water and from the city engineer if the street has been placed at established grade and if so, to start laying the six inch main as soon as possible.

An invitation from the Knights of Columbus to attend the Fourth of July celebration on the city hall lawn was read and accepted.

It was decided to have the water board barn below the city hall decorated for firemen's week at a cost not to exbceed $7.50.

Superintendent Harrison called attention to the fact that the city now has a new auto truck and it would be good policy to equip the high points in the city with steamer hydrants. One hydrant has already been ordered and will be installed on Stephan street and during firemen's convention week the new truck will be demonstrated, using the new steamer hydrant. The board decided to purchase five other steamer hydrants and referred the matter with power to the supply committee. These hydrants will be installed on the high points of the city only.

Inspector O'Neil reported for May new fixtures found installed as follows: Faucets, 20; toilets, 11; baths, 7; laundry trays, 10; heaters, 4; showing an increased revenue per annum to the board of $102. New buildings under course of construction, 2; also made 45 inspections for automobiles.

Inspector Murphy reported new fixtures installed as follows: Faucets, 12; baths, 2; toilets, 7; laundry trays, 2; heaters, 1; showing increased revenue per annum of $59.50. He also reported special inspections as follows: Faucets, 4; baths, 3; toilets, 3; laundry trays, 3; increase in revenue of $101.50. Inspections for automobiles, 22; new buildings under course of construction, 4; hose viol tions, 15.

The board then adjourned subject to the call of the chair.

PAINT AND PAINT BRUSH.

Now Is the Time When Bright Sunlight Shows All the Dingy Places.

Paint and paint brush should be as close friends of the housewife as are needle and thread. Perhaps it is the unconscious psychology exercised on women by good paint advertising or perhaps it is because they are skillful at it that they enjoy odd bits of painting about the house. The can of "ready mixed" covers a multitude of sins of commission from heels, hands, knocks, scrapings and rough treatment generally.

There is the baby buggy of wicker, stained and dirty from long use. A small can of stain and a couple of coats of black on the springs and wheels will make it withstand the still harder test of spring showers. Then, baby's iron crib looks as though it has incipient measles where baby has dented off the enamel with the stock of its toy gun. Two coats, or, better, three, of white paint and enamel will cover up the blisters and make the crib as sanitary and pleasing as when new.

On close inspection the gas stove and its pipes appear rustily dingy and down-in-the-mouth, as it were. Ah, just the thing! A small can of special stove paint in black will make the stove gleam happily again and remove its unkempt air. Perhaps, too, the radiators are spotted and shineless. It is only the work of a half hour to paint them with special silver or gold radiator paint.

The kitchen is an important field for the use of paint brush and paint. Frequently unsightly plumbing can, as suggested, be made attractive by the various lacquer paints. The pantry shelves need never be hard to clean if they are treated to one or two coats of white enamel. Table drawers also can be painted, which will prevent them from absorbing grease and getting so dirty. The legs and front of the ordinary kitchen table will look better and stay cleaner longer if given a coat of paint harmonizing with the other colors in the room. Wooden salt boxes, strips on which to hang utensils, the space between shelves in many closets, can all be made brighter and more sanitary by a liberal use of paint.

Under the head of paint must be included the great variety of stains combined with varnish or various other wood finishes. These are particularly useful in "touching up" floors, woodwork, certain pieces of furniture, and in staining soiled wicker and basket work. Perhaps it is a favorite rocker which has been kicked and knocked until the finish is spoiled. It is not very difficult to touch it up or to refinish it entirely, first sandpapering it to remove the old varnish and then handling it as if it were an entirely new piece. Taborets, small tables, stools, all these can be made to wear longer and appear like new if treated to the magic of the paint brush.

All woods with exposed pores absorb moisture and grease. Water enters the pores, causes them to swell and thus become disfigured. The more impervious the wood surface can be made the easier it is to keep it clean and the longer the wood will last. Paint, varnish and stain, whose base should always be the best linseed oil, fill the pores of the wood, coating and rendering it impervious. And paint is not hard to clean. It is the open, untreated woodwork which looks dingy, absorbs grease and is hard to care for.

Polishing Silver.

An excellent silver polishing cloth can be made in the following way: Buy an ounce of jeweler's rouge, mix with a little water, rub into a piece of chamois skin and dry.

Cleaning Raincoats.

To clean raincoats sponge them with a mixture of alcohol and ether, to which a tablespoonful of ammonia to a pint of liquid has been added.

A Mythical Lover

By MARTHA V. MONROE

My dear, you being my most intimate friend, I write you first of all to announce my engagement. Harry after hanging about me for two years has at last proposed. How much longer he would have continued to do so had I not by my own skillful manipulation brought him to terms I don't know. As it is, I had a hard time landing him and did so only after a number of efforts had failed.

Now, I wish to assure you, my dear, that if you have occasion to bring a man to terms, do not adopt any of the old fashioned methods that are well known—that is, if you are playing a man who is as adept at the game as you. I tried a number of them on Harry, and he was too smart for them all. First I told him that I was intending to study the law and would make a vow of celibacy that I might be wedded only to my professional work. He laughed me to scorn; drew ironical pictures of my arguing a case before a jury; said he would like to be the judge before whom I pleaded a case, and all that.

About the time of this first failure the European war broke out, and I threatened to go abroad and take care of sick and wounded soldiers. He said he was thinking of going to France and enlisting in the Foreign legion. I didn't go as a nurse, and he didn't go as a soldier. He had met my bluff with one of his own.

Then Howard Wentworth came to town, and of all the girls here he seemed to prefer me. Taking advantage of his preference, I encouraged him, especially in presence of Harry. What did the scamp do but devote himself to Agnes Woodruff. I was frightened for fear she would get him away from me and dropped Mr. Wentworth immediately. After I had done so Harry gradually ceased to pay marked attention to Agnes, but I knew that he was still more or less devoted to her, and it worried me.

Having heard that Aunt Caroline had been in her youth skillful at the game of hearts, I confessed my failures and my anxiety to her and asked her to help me.

"The trouble with your expedients," she said to me, "is that they are too palpable. One of those you have tried is excellent, but you did not apply it in the right way. I refer to your attempt to pique your lover by accepting the attentions of another man. You should not have called in the attentions of a real admirer, but an imaginary one."

Not understanding what Aunt Carrie meant, I asked her to explain. She did so and gave me the identical method by which she brought Uncle John to terms twenty years ago. I made up my mind to try it.

My first move was to nerve myself to treat Harry with indifference for a stated period. This being a part of a general plan, I was enabled to play the part pretty well. I was careful not to overact it, in order that he might not see through what I was up to. Having apparently grown more indifferent to him for three or four months, I accepted an invitation from Elinor Trask to make her a visit. I remained away six weeks, and when I came home I talked a great deal to my intimate girl friends about a fascinating fellow I had met, or, rather had not met, during my visit, giving them the impression that I had been much taken up with him. Of course they spread a report that I was either engaged or was likely to be engaged, and it reached Harry's ears.

Nevertheless so confident was he that he could drop me and take me up when he pleased that he placed but little confidence in my preference for him having been diverted to another channel. He came to see me on my return from my visit, twitted me on having lost my heart during my absence and asked for a description of this "Adonis," as he called my mythical lover, who had been so fortunate as to win such a prize as myself. I turned the conversation upon other topics. Harry asked me to go to the theater with him the next evening. I told him so decidedly that I had a previous engagement that he did not ask for another evening.

Harry did not call again for some time. Meanwhile I was talking to my chums about the fascinating man I had met, confident that what I said would reach the man I really loved. The next time he called on me I telephoned to a florist, with whom I had left an order for flowers to be filled on call, to send them at once. Half an hour later the flowers came and were brought into the room to me where I was sitting with Harry. Pretending to be anxious about them, I opened the box containing them. Inside was a little envelope. I seized it and without opening it held it in the palm of my hand.

This was altogether too much for Harry's equanimity. He demanded to see the card of the sender, and I refused to give it to him. He turned very red, then pale, and I saw that an emotional storm was raging within him. I let him go on till he had committed himself, after which he lost all interest as to who sent the flowers, for we were engaged.

I assure you, my dear, I am very happy, and Harry says he is very happy, and, as for my mythical lover, I think it is perfectly honorable for me to have used him, for he can't be a bit disappointed.

CANCER IN THE FAMILY.

There Is No Proof That the Dreaded Disease Is Hereditary.

Perhaps nothing causes more needless worry than the fact that one or more persons in a given family have died from cancer. This is commonly taken as a proof that the disease is hereditary. This does not at all follow. There is probably no greater chance of inheriting cancer than there is of being killed by lightning or of breaking one's neck falling downstairs. Perhaps there are people who worry even about those contingencies, but the statisticians have shown that such fatal accidents are extremely rare.

People who are concerned because their relatives have succumbed to cancer fail to consider how widespread the disease is. A malady that causes one death out of every eight among women and one out of every fourteen among men over forty is fairly common. On this basis it does not take much arithmetic to figure out how likely it is that cancer will occur many times in some families.

The eminent statisticians, King and Newsholme, have pointed out that it does not prove heredity to show that in one family five deaths occurred from cancer. By the very frequency of the disease and the laws of chance such cases would be expected even if no one had ever suggested the idea of heredity.

In some species of animals it is believed a certain susceptibility to tumors may be inherited. But so far as human beings are concerned the foremost authorities believe that heredity in cancer may be regarded as a negligible factor.—Journal of the American Medical Association.

The Almanac Church.

One of the oddest churches in England is St. Botolph's at Boston. It has aptly been called the Almanac church. In the tower are 365 steps, corresponding to the days in the year. The church has twelve pillars, fifty-two windows and seven doors, representing the months, weeks and days in the week. In the west porch are twenty-four steps ascending to the library, representing the hours of the day. Again, on each side of the choir are sixty steps leading to the roof, denoting on the one side the minutes of the hour and on the other the seconds of the minute.—Boston Post.

The Office Seeker.

"Wake Me Up When Kirby Dies."

There must be many old timers still living who remember the days of the stock company at the old Bowery theater. These will easily recall both Kirby and Eddy, the latter of whom was very popular and whose name gave rise to the call heard for so many years and still heard sometimes among the gallery gods, "Eddy-eddy-eddy-eddy!" Kirby was famous for his dying scenes. While it was not generally delectable, his death was always so much the better part of the show that many spectators preferred to sleep through the other portions of the play, while their less sophisticated companions would wake them up "when Kirby died."—New York Sun.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 12, 1915.

AUTOMOBILE SPEED LIMIT.

Almost everyone admits the justness of the request of automobile owners for an amendment to the Kingston speed ordinance which will permit automobiles to travel faster than fifteen miles an hour on certain streets within the city limits without the drivers being law breakers. From the experience of autoists as given at the recent meeting of the Automobile Club of Ulster County it is evident that it is impossible to limit automobiles to that speed in climbing the Rondout hills yet everyone who goes faster than fifteen miles is violating the law.

Limiting speed to fifteen miles on certain streets within the city is ridiculous. Albany avenue from the bridge to the city line is sufficiently wide to admit of several lines of vehicles and traffic other than that furnished by automobiles is comparatively light along that thoroughfare. The Flatbush road, Rosendale road, Wilbur road and Hurley road, within the city limits, are not so heavily traveled that automobiles could not pass over them with perfect safety at greater speed than the city ordinance now permits.

That most automobiles do travel at a greater speed than that to which they are limited by the ordinance is admitted by Chief of Police Wood, who says that no arrests have been made except when the speed attained was greater than twenty miles. His argument that increasing the speed limit to twenty or twenty-five miles would invite automobile owners to travel at that rate and tempt them to exceed it just as they exceed the present limit is not entirely sound. It applies to automobilists whose reckless speed and disregard for everybody's rights in the past has been responsible for a low limit to which all must bow. And no man or woman possessing common decency, whether driving an automobile or a team of horses, would attempt to exceed a reasonable speed limit on crowded thoroughfares or where children are at play.

To travel at fifteen miles an hour in certain of the business sections of Kingston during certain periods of the day or night is not only reckless but criminal, but what would be a safe rate of travel for such streets would be out of reason on certain other streets, like Albany avenue and the others mentioned.

Raising the speed limit for certain streets and restricting it for others would be an excellent thing for everybody. The argument that we should raise the limit because some other city or village already has done so is not based on sound sense because conditions in another community may be entirely different from what they are here. The converse of the proposition also is true. Every community should know its needs and govern itself accordingly.

It might be well to amend the existing ordinance by specifying speed limits for some streets or sections, or it might be advisable to leave the fixing of speed limits to the discretion of the police, designating the speed limits for such streets by appropriate signs placed at the right side of the streets near the intersection with other streets. Whatever may be the plan best adapted to our needs should receive the careful attention alike of automobilists and officials who should agree on some form of amendment, because the present Kingston speed ordinance, like many other laws, should be changed to meet new conditions.

Although American arms are outstretched in welcome to the foreigner who visits our shores either to make his home here or merely as a tourist, no American regrets the departure for Germany of Dr. Dernburg, whose unofficial mission since he has been in the United mStates has been to influence public opinion. In doing this he has been eminently successful, but his mission has been a failure because he attempted to influence public opinion in favor of the barbarous position assumed by his country toward the rest of the world. The American people have learned to judge accurately the merits of a cause and its advocate. In Dernberg's case the people realized more quickly than usual the real situation. After such episodes as that of Dernberg, it is usual for someone to predict that the lesson will make a lasting impression on schemers seeking to have the public grind their axes. Such predictions are without foundation. The same tactics will be employed again but probably not with the same degree of rawness employed by Dr. Dernberg.

THE TWO SIDES.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

With the freedom characterizing dress in America today, it seems strange that an attempt ever should have been made by our early colonists to restrict the dress of the lower classes. Sumptuary laws were passed similar to those which had been enforced by English kings and queens, and every effort was made to have dress constitute a badge of rank.

But all the statutes conceived and passed by those aspiring ancestors of ours were unavailing against the spirit of universal liberty, which tolerated no interference in matters of dress; and it was not long before the thrifty simplicity of the early settlers was forgotten, just as it is today, in the desire to keep pace with the best.

We sometimes smile a bit when we look at mistress and maid and must look again if we would tell the difference by marks of dress, and yet the world cannot be practical all the time, and it is well that the lines of separation are not too sharply drawn.

The simple and inexpensive may be a world better suited to the pocketbook and the life of a maid; but the Maker of us all gave the same desires and aspirations to the lowly as to those more favored of fortune, so why should we smile?

In some European countries the peasant dress is sweetly picturesque, quaint and becoming. But the peasant dress is gradually passing from view, and doubtless in time it will be relegated to musuems, duly ticketed with the story of class distinctions, while the peasant will walk forth in proud attire, shorn of every badge of station.

Perhaps with the passing of the distinctive costume, the pretty peasant girl may lose something of charm. but if she is happier with the gay colors and the quaint make-up consigned to show-places, accepting the newest styles and the fashions of the world for herself, we can well afford to lose the picture.

For, after all, our regret at the passing of the peasant costume is a bit selfish. It is fascinating to skip away to other lands, away from the modern spirit of sameness everywhere, and in the strange customs and the bizarre bits of color in picturesque costumes we see only a delightfully new picture.

But to the peasant who wants to be one with the modern spirit, it tells of class distinction and of markings too pronounced to last forever.

And we dearly love to hear the negro folk song; we say it is a pity to see it gradually die out and we wish we might do something to keep in memory the plaintive melodies of slave days. Remembering the soft swing of the negro voice at its best, ringing out under warm southern skies in the rich, quaint, old-time songs, we wonder why the "jubilee singers" of today are drifting so far away from the memories of the past that we scarcely recognize the melodies.

But it is just because we want to enjoy the effect of musical novelty and the natural atmosphere of other days, while they want to forget and keep pace with the times.

And who blames them? What we lose in a fleeting glimpse of picturesque, if unworthy times, they gain in added dignity, and year by year the negro song will grow less and less like its old plaintive self, and the soft, rich rolling notes will be lost in the modern song of their freer times.

The old plantation songs, with their memories of tiny cabins and fervent religious spirit, are very sweet to hear; but I believe we would rather forget if there were something personal in those songs, so if the negro folk-song passes, along with the gay peasant costume, it is only the way of nature.

And it is the same touch of nature in us all that makes it so useless to preach to working-girls against the folly of yielding to the love of dainty clothes and of buying perishable fabrics that have no real part in the hurly-burly, work-a-day world.

They forget occupations, income, station, suitability, practicability and all else in the one desire to follow the pleasant way that others travel.

And what the law-makers or the precedent-makers of old were unable to accomplish with our sturdy colonists, wise, matter-of-fact folk today need not hope to bring about.

An Odd Idea.

"To him who keeps his ears open ideas come from the most unexpected sources."

The speaker, Detective William J. Burns, was lecturing on Alcoholism and Crime in Pittsburgh. He resumed.

"Thus, on the way hither this evening, I passed two women, one of whom was limping slightly. As I walked by, the limping lady groaned:

"'These shoes certainly do hurt. They're too tight.'

"'Well, dear,' said the other lady soothingly, 'shoes are like husbands—better a bit tight now and then than too loose.'"—Pittsburgh Post.

The Clerk Who Got Caught.

Here is a typical Depew story and its author is particularly fond of this offspring, born as it was under sunny skies and rehabilitated to point a moral in one of the senator's famous political speeches.

"Last time I was traveling in the south I had to put up over night at a second-rate hotel in western Georgia. I said to the clerk when I entered: 'Where shall I autograph?'

"'Autograph?' said the clerk.

"'Yes, sign my name, you know.'

"'Oh, right here.' As I was signing my name in the register, in came three roughly clothed, unshorn fellows immediately recognizable as Georgia Crackers. One of the men advanced to the desk.

"'Will you autograph?' asked the clerk, his face aglow with the pleasure that comes from the consciousness of intellectual superiority.

"'Certainly,' said the Georgia Cracker, his face no less radiant than that of the clerk; 'mine's rye.'

"There was no escape for the clerk and he treated with as good grace as he could under the circumstances. Next morning I said to him: 'That was too bad, the way you got caught last night.'

"'Well, I suppose I shouldn't complain,' he replied; 'but the next time I speak a foreign language in my own country I'll know what I'm talking about.'"—New York American.

The Traces, Too.

Into Mr. Toddles's study marched the detective. "You sent for me, I understand," said he gravely, "to investigate a burglary that was committeed here last night?" "Of course I did! Of course—of course!" fussed Mr. Toddles. "What is missing?" "Several odds and ends and three complete sets of harness—brand new, too!" "Ah!" murmured the detective, making a note in his little book. "And have you any idea how many thieves were in this robbery? Did the thief or thieves leave any clew—any traces behind them?" "Traces—traces!" said Mr. Toddles. "No; they took those, too!"—Answers.

CARNIVAL SHOW ARRIVES SUNDAY

The Levitt-Myerhoff Shows, which will hold the carnival at the athletic field next week under the auspices of the Central Hook & Ladder Company, will arrive in Kingston on Sunday with 31 cars and will at once begin the work of preparing for the opening of the carnival on Monday.

There are fifteen different shows and riding devices. The trained animal show is the largest and is one of the best now exhibiting in the United States.

May Ecklesteen, whose daring diving at Madison Square Garden last winter attracted a gret deal of attention, accompanies the shows and will give a free performance each day, diving from a height of eighty feet into a tank of water.

The Crystal Maze, which is the original maze invented by Mr. Levitt and which for some time was at Coney Island, will be one of the interesting attractions, as also will be Minnewawa, an unusually rare freak, and the cabaret shows.

The merry-go-round was built at a cost of $1,800 and is illuminated by one thousand electric lights. The Ferris wheel and other features are all big and anyone who fails to find entertainment at the carnival will be hard to please.

LOCAL C. E. UNION.

Lawn Festival to be Held on Monday, June 21.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Kingston Local Union of Christian Endeavor was held on Friday evening in the Albany Avenue Baptist Church. It was decided to hold a lawn festival on the evening of June 21 on the lawn of the Fair Street Reformed Church. The resignation of Miss Augusta Wood, recording secretary of the Kingston Local Union, was received with regret and accepted. Miss Grace Terwilliger was elected to fill the office in conjunction with the office of secretary. Other matters of busines were discussed, the most important of which was the planning of a moonlight sail, the date to be announced later. The society from the Fair Street Church will visit the city home this month and the one from the Albany Avenue Baptist Church will visit it in July. After the meeting was adjourned, refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

False Alarm Sent In.

A false alarm of fire was sounded from Box No. 44, corner of Hasbrouck avenue and Murray street, this morning at 9:10 o'clock. It was learned by the police that the glass in the fire box had been broken but that a boy from the neighborhood in company with members of his baseball team had opened the box and sent in the alarm. The police are looking for the lad, whose name is known, and will arrest him.

Her Afternoon Naps.

Weiner Hose Inspected.

An inspection of Weiner hose company was held at the central fire station on Friday evening. The members of the company were given their new uniforms and upon donning them went to the cellar of the fire station where they went through a series of evolutions under the direction of Charles H. Van Gaasbeek, a former quartermaster sergeant of Company M. The company made a fine appearance in their new togs and executed the movements of the drill in military fashion. Weiners will have a big turn out for the parade next Thursday.

In Recorder's Court.

Isadore Feldstein was arrested by Sergeant Murray on Friday on a warrant charging him with assault in the third degree on complaint of Ben Feldstein. The details of the assault were not brought out in court as the defendant pleaded not guilty and the case was set down for trial on Monday morning.

Frank Miller, arrested by Policeman Walker for being a vagrant, was arraigned this morning before Recorder Lang. He was discharged with a warning to get out of town as quickly as possible.

HUSBAND JAILER, FEARING THE LAW, RELEASES IMPRISONED WIFE AND CHILDREN.

(The picture shows Mrs. Morris R. Volck and her two year old daughter who were imprisoned in their own home for several days by Morris Volck, husband and father, because of a family quarrel.)

New York, June 12.—Fearing the results of the issuance of the habeas corpus writ procured by the friends of Mrs. Volck, to bring about the release from her home where she was imprisoned by her husband, Morris Volck. Shortly before the arrival of the officers of the law, left the home and permitted his wife and child to leave.

The imprisonment of Mrs. Volck came as a result of a family quarrel during which Mrs. Volck declared her intention of returning to the home of her father. Volck locked all the doors and windows and remaining on guard himself refused to permit his wife to leave the home or to communicate with any of her friends or relatives outside.

Fearing bodily harm for Mrs. Volck and the child Mrs. Volck's father, Jabaish Holmes, a prominent and wealthy lawyer, procured a writ of habeas corpus and was about to forcibly take possession of Mrs. Volck and her child when Volck gave up the keys to his home and left.

The Volcks are socially prominent and New York's 400 is astir over the incident.

GEORGIA PRISON COMMISSION VOTE AGAINST CLEMENCY FOR FRANK IN SPITE OF PETITIONS WITH OVER A MILLION SIGNATURES.

Atlanta, Ga., June 12.—Greatly to the surprise of the general public the Prison Commission of Georgia, in a report submitted this morning to Governor Slaton, declined to recommend that the death sentence imposed on Leo. M. Frank for the murder of Mary Phagan be commuted to imprisonment for life.

BRYAN GOING INTO RETIREMENT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 12.—With a statement today outlining partly his future plans, William Jennings Bryan, former secretary of state, was ready to go into retirement "for a time" according to remarks when he issued his appeal to the German Americans of the U. S.

This document in which Bryan asked that portion of the population that came from Germany to use its influence with the Berlin government to come to a peace agreement with the U. S. was received with general displeasure in official circles.

It was stated by persons close to the administration that the former secretary virtually had given out some of the cabinet secrets in declaring that President Wilson intends to insist that Great Britain respect the rights of American shipping, just as he has demanded that Germany guarantee the freedom of the seas and the safety of American life and property while traveling with them.

It was hinted strongly in official circles, also that Mr. Bryan had grown restless in his position as secretary of state, especially as President Wilson had begun to handle foreign affairs largely himself and merely had seized upon the opportunity presented by the German situation to sever his official connection with the government. The further suggestionwas made that Mr. Bryan's statement to the German-Americans was a veiled plea for their support in any political propaganda he may decide to inaugurate.

A Little Problem.

If the telephone company charges 15 cents to carry your voice across the Hudson river, and if the telegraph company charges 25 cents to carry ten words across, and if the ferryboat charges 3 cents to carry your body across, and if the tunnels charge 7 cents for carrying your body under the Hudson river, and if the express companies charge 28 cents for carrying a 20 pound parcel across, and if the government charges 15 cents for carrying a 20 pound parcel across, compute the amount of logic in a square inch of modern civilization.—Life.

Poison That Destroys Mind.

The Mexican Indians derived from their ancestors, the Aztecs, the method of making the poison of Talavatchi. It is a subtle drug, the constituents of which are not known. The peculiar effect of the poison is to destroy the mind, while only slightly affecting the body.

Getting It Right.

"You've got the wrong preposition. Make it 'for' instead of 'of.'"—Browning's Magazine.

"I don't know. Sounded to me like neuralgia expressed in music."—London Tit-Bits.

A long, slow friendship is the best; a long, slow enmity the deadliest.—Merriam.

POULTRY PICKINGS.

According to experiments carried on at the Maine station, high producers are not nearly always reproducers of high producers. Medium producers produce more high producers.

For egg production early hatched pullets are the best.

Never judge the future plumage of a chick by the color of its down.

Animal protein material produces more eggs than vegetable protein material and is the most economical. It can best be provided in the form of beef scrap and skimmilk.

The size of the chick bears a direct relation to the egg from which it is hatched. Small chicks hatched from small eggs never grow so large as chicks hatched from larger eggs of the same breed.

SOUR MILK GOOD FOR YOUNG CHICKS

Take two pens of young chicks, manage and feed them alike, except that you give one all the sour skimmilk the birds will drink, and note the difference from the start until they go into the laying house in the fall, writes E. S. Parsons in the Country Gentleman.

The cockerels from the milk fed pen can be sold as broilers about a week earlier, and they will bring a higher price. When chicks are given all the sour skimmilk they want they do not require so much green feed as otherwise, and the mortality of milk fed chickens is low.

Bacillary white diarrhea, the worst scourge in poultry raising, may be controlled and strong vigorous chicks raised from infected stock if, as soon as chicks are dry in the incubator, their crops are filled with commercial starter, buttermilk or clean sour skimmilk. I prefer commercial starter and use a medicine dropper to squirt the milk down the chicks' throats.

Authorities on white diarrhea say the greatest danger period is during the first forty-eight hours of the chicks' lives, but that chicks may get the disease until they are four days old. By giving the chicks sour skimmilk to drink from the start and keeping it always before them in open pans with wire tops the mortality may be reduced.

When the natural method of incubation is practiced it is the custom to set the first hens showing broodiness in the early spring. These are usually the ones that have been doing the best laying during the fall and winter. The eggs incubated are often produced by the winter "loafer" that will always lay during the breeding season. Such a practice does not have a tendency to increase egg production in the progeny, but rather the reverse. The biddy shown was not a winter loafer. Her chicks are pretty sure to be like herself.

The average chick does not learn to drink until he has been out of the shell seventy-two hours, by which time the germs of the disease may be well started, and other chicks may be infected. The time to use commercial starter, buttermilk or sour skimmilk to prevent and overcome white diarrhea and raise strong chicks is just as soon as possible after the chicks are out of the shell and dry. Then the disease may be confined to the intestines and crop. The sour milk cleans these organs at once.

One full dose at this very early time in the chick's life has more value as a preventive and cure than all the sour skimmilk it can drink afterward. During the past two years I have raised large, strong, vigorous chicks from stock that was once infected, and I have had a very low mortality.

Prevention of Poultry Disease.

Prevention of poultry diseases is a matter of proper ventilation of poultry houses, sanitation and watchfulness at all times. To remain healthy, fowls must have fresh air without drafts, be protected against the ravages of vermin, receive good food enough to satisfy their appetites and take exercise enough to digest the food.

Powder For Poultry Lice.

A good dusting powder for lice on poultry is made of three parts of gasoline, one part of cresol or carbolic acid —90 to 95 per cent—and all the plaster of paris or cement the liquid will moisten.

Elusive Hubby.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Roswell F. Coutant died on Monday at the home of his daughter, Miss Lillian Coutant, in Marlborough, aged 72 years. Mr. Coutant was a veteran of the Civil War having served throughout the war. He is survived by three sons, Augustus, William F. and George W., and one daughter, Lillian, all of Marlborough. The funeral was held Thursday afternoon.

John Jackson, a familiar character down town, died on Friday at his home on Ann street after an illness of a few days. He was known by everybody and had worked at about every odd laboring job in the town. He was employed at a number of cafes in town and way back in the dim past was the motive power which turned the press of the Kingston Courier. The funeral was held this afternoon.

William J. Tierney died at his residence, 6 Hudson street, this morning. He is survived by his widow and 9 children, Mrs. William Killian, Christopher, William, Frances, Rose, Arthur, Catherine, Helen and Stella and two sisters and one brother, Mrs. John Hayes of East Hampton, Conn., Mrs. Charles McCarthy of Springfield, Mass., and Joseph Tierney of Bridgeport, Conn. IN SPECIAL TERM.

Three Divorce Suits and One Other Before Judge Hasbrouck.

Judge Hasbrouck today granted an interlocutory decree of divorce in the action brought by Mabel Clow against Charles Clow, which was tried recently before him at supreme court chambers. The parties were married at Jersey City, N. Y., on December 16, 1905, by the Rev. Mr. Craig. The acts on which the divorce action was based occurred in Brooklyn in April of this year. Clow is an iron moulder by trade and formerly lived in Greene county having been born at Coxsackie. Under the interlocutory decree, Mrs. Clow is allowed to resume her maiden name, to remarry and to receive $7.50 a week alimony. Abraham Miller of Brooklyn was her attorney.

In the action for divorce brought by Jane Depuy against Theron Depuy, which was tried sometime ago and in which an interlocutory decree was granted, a final judgment has been signed. Virgil B. Van Wagonen appeared for the plaintiff.

Testimony was taken in the action for divorce brought by Lillian Bridgewater against Arthur L. Bridgewater. The parties reside in Albany, where the acts complained of occurred. The matter was held open. Thomas A. Allen of Albany appeared for the plaintiff.

In the case of Shaheen Maroon and others against Assad Abdo George Hanna, an order was granted appointing J. DePuy Hasbrouck referee in supplementary proceedings. Ferris, Damenberg & Anabacher appeared for the plaintiff.

Very Considerate.

A marriage advertisement is published in a Zurich paper by "a rich Swiss philosopher" who wants a wife who must fulfill the following conditions: She must be beautiful in body, face and mind and possess beautiful teeth and hair of her own and not bought articles. Besides German, she must have a knowledge of English and French, be a musician and have an irreproachable reputation. "Other faults," the philosopher of forty years states, "will be overlooked."

ASSESSMENT STRICKEN OFF

An order striking from the assessment rolls of the towns of Gardiner and Shawangunk for 1914 the assessment against property of the city of New York on which the Catskill aqueduct has been constructed was signed by Judge Hasbrouck this morning, in conformity with the decision of the court of appeals which was handed down some time ago.

The decision of the court of appeals was made in the certiorari proceedings taken by the city of New York to review the assessment for the year 1912. Proceedings also had been taken in the year 1910 and 1911, and subsequently were taken in 1913 and 1914. The appeal to the court of appeals was taken in the 1912 proceedings, and on the judgment of the court of appeals declaring that the assessment was illegal and void and should be stricken from the tax roll of that year, Judge Hasbrouck last week signed an order making the judgment of the court of appeals the judgment of the supreme court. The 1914 proceedings, in which the order was signed today, was similar in every way to the 1912 proceedings and governed by the decision of the court of appeals in that case.

In the 1910, 1911 and 1913 proceedings, which stil are pending, referees were appointed by the supreme court at special term before the 1912 proceedings reached the court of appeals, and action in regard to the proceedings for those years probably will be taken later. William McM. Speer has appeared throughout the tax proceedings for the city of New York; Augustus H. Van Buren has been counsel for the towns of Gardiner and Shawangunk.

WOODSTOCK.

Woodstock, June 12.—The school entertainment netted over $60, which was turned over to the trustees.

Mrs. Homer Finch visited friends here this week.

Poultney Bigelow delivered a lecture to a large audience last week. Europe and America, was the topic.

Shamus O'Shiel, the Irish poet, and his wife, who spent several weeks here on a vacation trip, returned to New York.

We hope the persistent rumors of the state road being built between Woodstock and Saugerties this summer, will prove to be true.

Toeing the Line Under Difficulty.

A line of ragged little boys was ranged down the center of the school for exercise.

"Toe the line!" ordered the master.

A shuffling indicated obedience. The master inspected the line approvingly until his eye rested on an urchin so far behind the others as to be almost out of sight.

"Price," he shouted, "why don't you toe the line?"

"Pleath, thir, I am tocin' it," lisped the boy, "but I got dadth boo'th on!"—London Telegraph.

ODDS AND ENDS.

The reception committee of the local firemen's committee to make arrangements for the entertainment of visiting firemen next week will hold a meeting at the central fire station on Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

An al fresco strawberry social will be held on the lawn at the Fair Street Reformed Church on Tuesday evening, June 22, under the auspices of the Sunday school classes of Mrs. Wonderly, Miss Swart and Prof. W. W. Harries. The proceeds will be devoted towards paying for a piano for the primary department of the Sunday school.

A Rummage Sale.

On June 18, at the Firemen's Hall in Woodstock, there will be a rummage sale. No ordinary rummage sale this—for besides the usual collection of wonderful old treasures sold for next to nothing there will be gay booths, displaying garden supplies, sweetmeats, farm produce, crockery and what not. It is said that an Appolo Player Piano will be sold and rumor has it that Lady Bountiful will be present with surprises for the children. Delicious "eats" will be served, I know. This sale is for the benefit of the Woodstock Club and the Woodstock Woman's Club. For those not acquainted with the work of these clubs a word of explanation might not come amiss at this time. The Woodstock Club, which has an enrollment of about 100 members and is almost two years old, supports the Woodstock Library, engages when necessary the services of a town nurse, arranges for lectures (on topics of common interest by well known speakers) and promote social activity by giving a monthly party in the library during the season. Its object is to bring to Woodstock a bigger and broader enjoyment of the good things of life. An immediate ambition is to furnish electric power for a moving picture equipment already invested in.

The Woodstock Women's Club, about 3 years old with nearly 60 members is also occupied with the worthy ambition of improving town conditions. It has in the past year assisted many a needy one, considered and put into action movements for beautifying Woodstock, including a street cleaning department, and is ready and anxious to do what it can toward the work of building up a better order of things than exists today.

These clubs are doing work that interests you, that concerns you vitally, that should stir your civic pride and make you anxious to help. So come one and all to the rummage sale. Come before the 18th, bearing the spoils of your garret and what you may have in the way of contributions for the various booths mentioned. Come on the 18th and stay until the auctioneer has knocked down to the highest bidder the last dear relic of an older day. Do come.

RUG ON SIDEWALK.

Demonstration of Wearing Quality That Will be Convincing.

An unusual demonstration as to the wearing quality of a Wilton rug is being made by the firm of Stock & Cordts in front of their store on lower Broadway. A large Wilton rug was laid down on the sidewalk in front of the store this morning where it will remain for a week in all weather conditions, subject to traffic on the walk. The week of the firemen's convention was chosen on account of the great traffic. At the end of a week the rug will be removed and the dirt taken out with a vacuum cleaner. A prize of a vacuum sweeper will be given to the person who is nearest to the correct amount of dirt removed. After the rug is cleaned it will be on exhibition in the window and finally sold to the highest bidder.

A Curious Needle.

A curious needle was once in the possession of Queen Victoria. It was made at the celebrated needle factory at Redditch and represents the column of Trajan in miniature.

This Roman column is adorned with numerous scenes in sculpture, and on the needle (which was presented to the queen on her visit to the famous factory in December, 1864) scenes in her life are presented in relief, but so small that it requires a powerful magnifying glass to see them clearly.

This "Victoria" needle can, moreover, be opened and contains a number of needles of smaller size, which are also adorned with scenes in relief. —London Spare Moments.

The Flag at Half Mast.

The custom of showing the flag at half mast originated from the way at sea of showing the pre-eminence one ship had over the other in time of warfare. The vanquished always had to lower its flag, while the victor's would be raised as high as possible in exultation. To lower a flag is an act of submission or betokens respect to a superior or is a signal of distress. The hoisting of a flag half mast high came to be used, therefore, as a sign of mourning and respect.

Not Enough to Go Around.

"What are you laughing at, dear?" asked a fond mother of a little four-year-old miss who seemed to be greatly amused.

"Oh, at something funny that happened," was the reply, "but it's no use to tell you, because it isn't funny enough for both of us to laugh at."—Chicago News.

The Fighting Parson.

When the great-grandfather of the Duke of Norfolk was engaged in any of his electioneering contests he was always attended by his chaplain, an athletic man, one who had made such good use of his hands on several occasions that he acquired the name of "the fighting parson." Mr. Dauncey, an eminent counsel, having once to examine him as a witness during a trial, asked whether he was not the gentleman called "the fighting parson." "I believe I am, sir," the divine replied, "but if you require any more positive proof and will do me the favor to step out of court I will give it to you under my own hand." No further evidence was taken.

MACHINISTS, AWAKE!

Yes, get alive to your opportunity, Mr. Machinist, for during this month of June is the time of the year when jobs in your line are scarce and yet there are, in reality, plenty of them, if you only know how and where to look for them.

In The Freeman Want Columns you will find all sorts of places right in your line waiting for you, and, if none of these look attractive, run a Want Ad of your own telling the employers just what you want.

This will be almost sure to work, as nearly every Freeman Want Ad reader and user will tell you.

THE OLD MASTERS.

Paintings Without Signatures Are Judged by Their Technic.

It appears that many of the works of the old masters are not signed. Experts rarely rely on signatures alone in determining the authenticity of an old work, but trust rather to their knowledge of the painter's technic, says the Philadelphia Record.

False signatures can be easily detected. Spirits of wine or turpentine will usually remove a name of later date than the painting. In the course of time signatures often become very difficult to find. Painted originally in a shade slightly lighter than the ground, perhaps, they sink in, darken, and merge into the ground color or they are almost rubbed away by successive cleanings. Recognizable one day in a specially favorable light, they may not be visible again for weeks.

Experts speak of "will-o'-the-wisp" signatures, and many collectors have encountered accidental strokes and cracks that tantalizingly suggest a signature, though it can never be made definite. On the other hand, there have been remarkable cases of such marks, after careful study, resolving themselves into a famous name.

Sometimes the painter's name is most conspicuous as, for example, in Raphael's "Sposalizio" at Milan. Proud of having surpassed his master, the youthful genius wrote on a frieze in the very center of the canvas, "Raphael Urbinas."

Reynolds hardly ever signed his work. But upon the completion of the portrait of Mrs. Siddons as the Tragic Muse, he wrote his name large on the gold embroidery of her dress. He was unable, he said, "to resist the temptation of sending my name to posterity on the hem of your garment."

TRENCH SCENE.

BATTLE WEARY Soldiers, Sent [illegible] IN FIGHTING.

This interesting and unusual picture of trench life on the actual fighting front in Galicia shows a sentry guarding a trench while his comrades sleep on the hay with which the bottom of the trench is covered. Note rifles standing ready loaded near each soldier so that any alarm will bring each man to the defense in a moment's time. In distance notice similar trench similarly guarded.

ARMY BREAD WALL.

THE WALL OF ARMY BREAD

This photograph, taken in the Carpathian mountains and showing the manner in which food and beast is handled in war time under the strenuous conditions that existed during the recent struggle for these mountains is particularly interesting from the fact that it shows War Bread along the road much like stones being used in the barricade.

Report on New Truck.

Messrs. Daw and Wood of the state board of fire underwriters returned to Syracuse on Friday evening after making a test of the new motor fire truck purchased by the city. These experts will report at an early date the result of their examination to the board of fire commissioners and the data obtained will be given out for publication. From a superficial examination of the figures obtained one of the experts assured a Freeman reporter that the truck was eminently satisfactory.

The mud-guard was bent slightly but the occupants of the wagons were uninjured and there was no serious damage done.

If This Is Your Birthday

JUNE 12

The woman of this birthdate should marry a man whose birthdate falls between January 20 to February 19 for the greatest happiness. There is good reason for this, for the ardent, impetuous nature of the Gemini born needs the calm reposeful understanding love of an Aquarius person, and in this nature they will find the true balance of their own.

The Gemini women are inclined to be jealous, as they love ardently and are very demonstrative.

The Aquarius men are keenly intuitive, patient and will be able to control the nervous tendencies of the Gemini woman.

She will be fond of art, music and the beautiful in nature.

She is always adverse to explanations and argument and is not easily convinced when her mind is made up.

There is stubbornness in this nature and it is also inclined to be self-centered.

The Freeman Want Ads will find positions for waitresses, cooks, housekeepers and household goods will be sold to advantage that are advertised in the Freeman Want Ads this month.

GERMAN REPLY IN TWO WEEKS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 12.—The U. S. and Germany are on the way toward an amicable and mutually honorable settlement of their grave differences. This was the accepted view in official and diplomatic Washington.

Unofficial, but credible, reports have reached the capital that the second American note has been well received in Berlin, where the firmness of its tone was not overlooked but it was noted that the document is not bombastic in tenor and shows the disposition of this government to come to a reasonable basis of agreement.

The reply of the German foreign office to the American note transmitted two days ago is not expected for about two weeks, but there is a noticeable increase in the optimism of government officials, and the observant Washington public was noticeable today.

This more hopeful feeling regarding the controversy, however, was mixed with some concern as to the interpretation Germany and other foreign countries may put upon the propaganda sponsored by the retired secretary of state, William Jennings Bryan. The former premier has issued another statement explaining his position, his latest appeal being addressed to German-Americans who are asked to uze their influence upon the German government to persuade it not to take any steps which may lead to war.

Because of his recent utterances at a critical period in the nation's history, Mr. Bryan has not escaped severe criticism and it is understood that his activities at this time are not wholly understood by or pleasing to, official Washington.

While Germany considers the second American note, it became known in official quarters that this government will send to Great Britain and her allies a note seeking a change in the conduct of the "bread blockade" now conducted by them. It will be urged that such a blockade should be conducted along the recognized principles of international law which forbids interference with non-contraband articles in transit to or from a belligerent country through continuous neutral territory or destined to neutral ports.

If headway can be made with Great Britain it will relieve greatly the German situation, though it is still the purpose of the administration not to complicate the two issues of one with Germany regarding the neutrality of the seas and the safety of Americans, the other with Great Britain concerning her detention of non-contraband shipments. Germany constantly has sought to offer as an extenuating circumstance in her submarine warfare the British blockade, and while this government will not permit such plea to affect its attitude announced after the undoing of the Lusitania, the Washington administration, nevertheless will seek to impress upon Great Britain that it does not approve of persistent interference with shipping.

The American note to Germany has been read closely in diplomatic quarters.

There are a variety of predictions as to the probable reply of Germany, but the general impression seems to be that the note meets the situation fully and yet leaves the way open for a settlement through diplomacy, rather than sterner methods of the existing difficulties.

Reports, unofficial in character, have been received from England that the note is disappointing in a measure to Great Britain but it is suggested in this connection that the Bryan resignation and refusal to sign the note because it might lead to war with Germany, caused the capitals of the alies nations to expect a practical ultimatum instead of a note founded on a vigorous and yet reasonable discussion of the points in conflict between the U. S. and the Kaiser's government.

Copies of the American note have been cabled the American embassies in London, Paris, Petrograd and Rome. This has the effect of acquainting these governments of the willingness of the U. S. to make friendly suggestions regarding the subject of maritime warfare which may bring about not only a modification of the submarine policy of the Germans, but the blockade decree of the allies.

The entire situation today was regarded here as more favorable than it has been for several weeks and the extreme pessimism which prevailed immediately after the receipt of the German reply to the first note, is being dissipated gradually.

AMERICAN COLLEGE WOMEN IN MUTE PROTEST FOR VOTE.

New York, June 11.—A forceful method of bringing before the eyes of the voters their contention of the unfairness of giving illiterate foreigners the right to vote and withholding the same privilege from intelligent Amercan women was made by thirty members of the College Women's Suffrage League. Under the leadership of their president, Mrs. Charles L. Tiffney, the thirty members, bedecked in their college cap and gown, invaded the Federal Courts Building and stood in silent protest in the United States Circuit Court while a long line of aliens took the oath to be loyal American citizens.

Another meeting with Mr. Gillette will be held in the near future.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, June 12.—The ousting of Joe Birmingham was one of the best things that could have happened to the Cleveland Indians. The conditions in the past tend to show that it was Birmingham who was the disturbing influence in the club.

Since Birmingham has gone on his way the Indians have acted like a different ball club. They have been playing with a "hip, hip hooray, altogether, boys," spirit—a spirit that was sadly lacking during the past two seasons.

Birmingham is a peppery gent—a bit too peppery. That was his greatest trouble. He "rawhided" his men too much. He was too prone to find fault. That made his men balk. Had Birmy used a little gentleness and less pep, had he been a bit freer with praise and less extravagant with criticism, things might have gone different in the Cleveland club.

Birmy last year claimed there was a clique within the club that was working against him. He told Owner Somers that if the clique was removed he could get better results. Birmy named Lajoie, Gregg, Johnson and Olson as the leaders of this clique. He asked that these men be sold or traded. That quartet ranked among the most valuable men on the Indian roster but Somers backed up Birmy and got rid of those men.

But events early this season showed that it wasn't the clique that was at fault—that it was Birmingham himself. The old clique was gone from the club but new friction had come. Unable to direct his criticism at the missing quartet, Birmy picked out new victims of his wrath and a new "soreness" developed.

With Birmy out and the old clique back, the Indians would have a fine chance for first division honors. The Indians miss Lajoie; the gap left by the going of the great second sacker never has been filled. Doc Johnson has been playing a brilliant game at first base for the Pirates and if he were back with the Naps it would add 15 per cent to the strength of the club because Jackson could be shifted back to the outfield.

Gregg ranked as one of the greatest left-handers in the league last year. His arm hasn't been right this year, but he'll probably round into form soon. He's good for at least 60 per cent of his games—a percentage that would greatly enhance the Indians chances, if Gregg were back with the Cleveland outfit. Olson is a good infielder of the utility sort and the Indians need just such a man.

Birmingham made a great showing with the Indians after he succeeded Harry Davis as manager in 1912. The Indians were in a rut then. Under the leadership of Birmy they pulled out and zipped along during the latter part of the season.

In 1913 the Indians made a thrilling fight for the pennant. They were runners-up to the Athletes all the way, being nosed out for second place during the last few days of the season. Birmy got the bulk of credit for the Naps showing. He deserves some—but not the bulk. It was the hitting of Lajoie and Jackson, the pitching of Falkenberg and Gregg and the great all around team work of the outfit that turned the trick.

Birmy drove his men in 1913. At first they didn't mind it much. But when Birmy "bawled" them every time they lost a game the men experienced a feeling of peevishness toward their manager. They stood it without protest and without balking until the end of the 1913 season, but when Birmy continued "pulling" it in 1914 they resented it.

Birmingham is a brainy player and he would have been a great leader had he exercised a little more gentleness. But he didn't—and he is a manager no longer.

Visitors at City Home.

Friday was visiting day at the city home and the commissioners of charity and Superintendent Edmonston welcomed a number of visitors to the city home who were shown through the grounds and buildings and as usual found everything in apple pie order. Superintendent Van Orden and wife and the superintendents of the Newburgh and Poughkeepsie alms houses were also present that day and were much pleased with the facilities provided by Kingston for taking care of its poor and homeless.

They Made the Key.

T. I. Rifenbary & Son made the large wooden key representing the key of the city of Kingston which Mayor Canfield presented to the United Commercial Travelers at their annual convention which was held in Rochester and extended to the organization a cordial invitation to hold the 1916 convention in Kingston, which was accepted as exclusively told in Friday's Freeman.

WHO LANSING IS.

Sketch of Man of the Hour by His Home Newspaper.

Twenty-three years ago James G. Blaine, the "Plumed Knight," startled the country by resigning as secretary of state under President Benjamin Harrison, and the president called John W. Foster of Indianapolis to succeed him, says the Watertown Standard. Now that a similar situation has arisen, it is one of the coincidences of history that the "man of the hour" in Washington, the man who has been regarded as de facto secretary of state, who is now acting secretary of state because of Mr. Bryan's resignation, and who may actually succeed Mr. Bryan—Robert Lansing, counselor to the state department—should be the son-in-law of the man who relieved the emergency 23 years ago.

Succeeding John Bassett Moore as recently as March 20, 1015, in the position that was created just six years ago by Philander C. Knox, secretary of state under President Taft, it has been left for Mr. Lansing to make the post of counselor to the state department of even more importance, in many respects, than the actual secretaryship. For months it has been his name that has figured in many of the more important communications between this government and other countries; for months it has been his hand that has written most of the official notes defining this country's stand in intricate foreign situations, and for months a large part of official Washington has looked upon him as the actual head of the state department.

A large part of this importance of Mr. Lansing to the Wilson administration is said to have been due to the peculiarities of the Bryan temperament—a temperament which preferred to delegate to the state department counselor the drudgery of study and detail that many important ends of the state portfolio demanded—but in equipment, concentration and energy Counselor Lansing is held in Washington to have earned the distinction that has come to him.

Lansing Legal Expert.

Born 50 years ago in Watertown the son of an eminent lawyer, Mr. Lansing studied law and engaged in its general practice until after his marriage. Then he turned to international law. Not long after he had taken it up he was employed by the United States government in 1893 as associate counsel for this country in the fur seal arbitration. In the following two years he was counsel for the Mexican and Chinese legations in Washington. In the next year, 1896, Secretary of State Olney named him as counsel for this country before the Bering Sea claims commission. This post continued into 1897. During the two following years he represented individual parties before the Canadian Joint High Commission.

A further view of the Latin and Oriental diplomatic mind was obtained by Mr. Lansing during 1900-1901, when he was again counsel to the Mexican and Chinese legations. His next post for the United States came in 1903, when he represented this country before the Alaskan Boundary Commission in London. Two years later he was counsel for private interests in the Venezuelan asphalt disputes. In 1908 he was once more representing the United States in the Atlantic fisheries arbitration at The Hague. The Fur Seal Conference in Washington in 1911 saw him a delegate in behalf of this government, and that was followed, until his appointment to the counselorship, by his acting as special council to the state department on various matters.

Has Sat at Times with the Cabinet.

It was from this experience that Mr. Lansing gained his knowledge in the intricacies of international law, and Washington has known for some time that it was to him, rather than to Mr. Bryan, that the president went whenever he wished to be advised about those intricacies. Mr. Lansing has, too, sat at times with the president's cabinet, when Mr. Bryan has been out of town, and he is credited with having kept his finger on all that went on in the state department.

Known as a very hard worker, who came to his desk at 9 o'clock in the morning and always stayed late, Mr. Lansing has had little time for relaxation in the face of the problems that have confronted the administration in the past months. When he does relax, he is seen as a very likeable personality, with a hobby for painting pictures, for writing verses and for fishing.

LOCAL BASEBALL DOINGS.

Games Played or to be Played by the Home Teams.

The local Knights of Columbus baseball team will cross bats with the High Falls team at High Falls on Sunday afternoon.

The Barmann A. C. will cross bats with the Clark A. C. tomorrow at McVey's field. The Barmanns have been greatly strengthened and as the Clark A. C. are a fast team a good game is expected. Game called at 3 p. m.

This afternoon the Red Monograms and the Wappingers Falls team are playing a Tri-County League game on McVey's field. Murphy, of Saugerties, a fast, snappy player, is holding down third base in place of Glasser, who broke his left arm in last Sunday's game. There will be no game tomorrow at McVey's field. The Monograms will play the Hustlers at Poughkeepsie.
